CHINESE TO BE EXCLUDED

Position of Those in Hawaii to be Defined by Congress.

Only Men Having Regular Certificates Will Be Allowed to Enter San Francisco Until Congress Acts.

The Call of the 23rd has the following:

Assistant Secretary Howell was asked by the Call correspondent what action would be taken by the Treasury Department if Chinese arrived in San Francisco from Hawaii after the American flag had been raised over the islands.

"The Chinese exclusion act now in operation will be strictly enforced by this department," said Howell, "until Congress meets next December, when this department will ask for legislation on this subject. No Chinese without a certificate issued in the United States will be allowed to land. They will be sent back to Hawaii until Congress by law decides what shall be their status under the annexation of the islands."

"That settles the whole matter," said Collector J. P. Jackson yesterday when shown the above dispatch from Washington. "If Assistant Secretary Howell issues instructions to me in accordance with the foregoing there is nothing left for me to do but to follow them out to the letter. No, I shall not make a test case by permitting one Chinaman from Hawaii to land and having the matter carried into the courts. The Assistant Secretary says they cannot land, and that is all there is to it. Not one Chinaman from the islands can enter this port, and if any attempt it they will be sent back."

Assistant Secretary Howell's position is endorsed by a leading attorney of this city who has devoted his attention for years to handling Chinese cases, and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the exclusion laws. He says:

"In the case of the Chinese in Hawaii, they are subject to direct control by the National Congress, for like the other Territories, the islands are governed directly by Congress."

"The Chinese there are all under contract and every contract contains a clause that they shall be returned to China at the expiration of a stated period. They are not residents of the Hawaiian Islands; they have no domicile there in the strict meaning of the term; nor do they expect to remain there permanently. Having entered those islands on such terms prior to their becoming United States territory the Chinese cannot claim the right to enter any other portion of the United States in violation of the existing exclusion laws passed by Congress and ratified by treaty with China."

A Historical Firearm.

Stephen Hayward of Deer Park, Boone county, has in his possession a musket of great historical value. It was captured from a British officer in Concord, Mass., on April 1, 1775. Most of the British soldiers had left the village in haste, followed by Americans. From the window of one of the houses a fire was kept up on the Americans by a British officer and two soldiers who had locked themselves in the room. Mr. Hayward's great-grandfather, Hope Brown, and a neighbor forced the door and entered the room, killing the soldiers and capturing the officer, who proved to be a second lieutenant. The neighbor secured the sword and scabbard and Mr. Brown his musket.

The musket, being that of an officer, is lighter than others of that period. The barrel is 40 inches long, the total length 56 inches, and weighs 7 pounds 4 ounces. Stamped on the metal is the name of the armory where it was made, Galton, and the year 1762. On a brass plate near the grip is the Roman numeral III, and near the trigger is the crown with the initials G. B. Stamped on the band is the number of the regiment, the Fifty-second. — Kansas City Journal.
